“...You shall love the Lord your God with all your heart, with all your soul, and with all your mind.’ This is the first and great commandment. And the second is like it: ‘You shall love your neighbor as yourself.’ ”

Matthew 22:36-39

Where do we fix our eyes?

I remember our first-grade teacher asking us to “go around the class and tell everyone what they wanted to be when they grew up.” There were doctor wannabees, teacher wannabees, astronaut wannabees, all sorts of wannabees but no one was a poor and forgotten wannabee. We all had great aspirations. I’ve learned that once aspirations die so do hope and love and kindness. The world of a person without aspirations becomes a dark, lifeless place. Opportunity is for those who can afford it.

Sometimes in response to poverty I hear Christians misinterpret 2 Corinthians 4.18 as end times text, “So we fix our eyes not on what is seen, but on what is unseen, since what is seen is temporary, but what is unseen is eternal.”

It’s as though they are telling the poor that they will see the reward down the road in eternity but for now, suffer. As if “the poor just can’t cut it like the rest of us”, Or they think, “I did it, why can’t they?” Then Christians elect people who pass laws which take food, education and other opportunities and subsidies from the poor. Didn’t Jesus tell the disciples “With man this is impossible, but with God all things are possible.” If all things are possible with God, what does it mean when Christians remove those possibilities from others?

For the comfortable who have enjoyed plenty of opportunity, it’s easy for them to misinterpret 2 Cor. because “life” favors them. The “comfortable apostle” tells the poor, “quit being lazy” or “get off the drugs”, even though the evidence proves the poor are no lazier or on drugs than they are. Several Christian “leaders” are saying these things today and many agree with them. As a reward, swelling mega churches have become their letters of recommendation. Congregations pray for these super apostles everyday and the political leaders they support. Paul wants to change this same vision in Corinth.

Paul wants the Corinthians to take their eyes off these types in chapter 3 and not become one of them where he says-Are we beginning to commend ourselves again? Or do we need, like some people, letters of recommendation to you or from you? You yourselves are our letter, written on our hearts, known and read by everyone. You show that you are a letter from Christ, the result of our ministry, written not with ink but with the Spirit of the living God, not on tablets of stone but on tablets of human hearts.

Pauls’ tells his opponents in 2nd Corinthians, they achieved their “freedom” through cunning or power or dumb luck. Today their apostleship comes by validation of human recommendation, swelling congregations and bank accounts and political favors achieved through cunning, power and dumb luck. It is contrary to the freedom Paul delivers to those in need of Christ’s vision in Corinth. True freedom is the liberation of people to be what God intended them to be and help them realize they are part of the new covenant. Paul says that letter of recommendation comes from Gods-self whom the poor see and receive through the apostles like Paul, who deliver affirmations and hope rather than kill aspirations and opportunity.

Those who Paul opposes are misled by mainstream appearances he's saying in the text. It is the mainstream who are not looking toward things unseen. The opponents have taken Paul's suffering and hardships as failures instead of the marks of a true apostle. Paul puts them on notice that they have foolishly been misled. That their eyes are fixed on the wrong things.

As he says about those who minister to outcasts which are natural opponents for the mainstream, "To the one we are an aroma that brings death; to the other, an aroma that brings life. And who is equal to such a task?" Unlike Paul's opponents then and now, prophetic activists do not peddle the word of God for profit and comfort. On the contrary, in Christ they speak before God with sincerity, as those sent from God. You see, Paul is clear that he used to be one of those mainstream life taking types. Paul repented, he was transformed and turned toward the suffering, like Christ, to affirm the lives of the poor and forgotten people.

No one aspires to be poor. Those who kill the aspirations of the poor, whether it be taking away subsidies, health care, social security or even to remain silent to their plight, effectively giving up on them, don't see the unseen in them, here, now. For super apostles, Paul tells them to renounce their secret and shameful ways, to not distort the word of God and to not use deception to lure the masses. Regarding no one from a worldly view. Instead seeing the eternal in those who are unseen and fixing their sight upon them where God's letter is written.

Be a beacon of light for the poor, the tired, the huddled masses, the spiritual refugees, who've been cast away because they're gay or lesbian or too old or a minority, whose aspirations grow dim. That is what God, the unseen presence, has written in our hearts.

Paul is trying to convince everyone to be a steward of this vision. That's where his eyes are fixed. Where are our eyes fixed?

With love, Kevin
